OLD PARIS BRIDGE SAID TO BE HAUNTED

Gather around, children, while we unfold this remarkable tale of a remarkable ghostly visitor which is said to be an inhabitant of the old bridge over Stoner creek at the foot of Main street. This story, as told by Bob Porter, in the Sunday Leader, is fully up to average of modern ghost stories, and is enough to cause the American Society for Scientific Research to send an investigator here. The story follows:

"The old bridge on lower Main street, near the Bourbon county jail, which spans Stoner creek, and which was built over a hundred years ago, is said to be haunted. Several persons residing in East Paris who have had occasion to cross the bridge at a late hour at night during the past week, declare they saw a white figure flitting about in the bridge, the figure always disappearing as the end of the bridge is reached. A few nights ago Chief of Police Fred Link was approached by a negro near the Windsor Hotel, who between gasps declared he saw the wraith and that it was within a few feet of him when it disappeared. Some declare that it is the spirit of a negro who was hanged in the jail yard several years ago, and who died protesting his innocence. The more timid of those residing in that section of the city are going home earlier than has been their custom. A number of young men who scoff at the idea of ghosts are preparing to hold an all-night vigil in the bridge soon to test out the ghost theory."

EDITORIAL FLINGS

A group of Paris attorneys were "spinning yarns" a few nights ago in the office of one of the number, when one of them, a prominent young member of the legal fraternity, told this one:

"One of the best speeches I ever heard of was delivered by a young Irish member of the Lexington bar, in behalf of a client whose cow had been killed by a train on the C. & O. railroad. He said in one of the flights of oratory: 'If the train had been run as it should have been run, or if the bell had been rung as it should have been rung, or if the whistle had been blown as it should have been blown, of which they did neither, the cow would not have been injured when she was killed.'"

Many a mother thinks the times have returned to normalcy, now that the children are in school again.

Rum runners are making the wild waves wilder than ever.

THE TOBACCO OUTLOOK FINE

Prospects Rosy For Permanent Success And Stable Prices For The Product At Present

ASSOCIATION A MONEY-GETTER

Not within twenty years has the outlook for permanent success and stable prices for the product been as rosy at this time, and we are strongly of the opinion that the growers of the "weed" did, for an assured fact, bring about their independence for all time when they made the Burley Co-operative Marketing Association a success. For such it is now without question. Receipts at the various pool warehouses throughout the burley belt have proven, without any shadow of doubt, that the crop in 1921 was the shortest in many years—not more than 220,000,000 pounds at most. The best posted tobacco men—men who have been familiar with the growth of the crop for years—practically concede this fact. The Big Four realize this condition, and as a result are buying tobacco from the pool, but are also "gobbling" up all of the old tobacco that they can secure, having buyers on practically every hoghead market in the country. It is currently reported that the Louisville and Cincinnati hoghead markets will be out of tobacco in sixty days, and that within ninety days' time the only tobacco that can be secured, in quantities to amount to anything, will be in control of the Burley Association. Efforts are being made to get every tobacco grower in the burley growing belt to sign the contract and if this is done the machinery of the Association will run along smoothly and easily. We firmly believe that the Burley Growers' Association will bring to Central Kentucky more lasting prosperity than has ever come to it, and that farmers and business men will reap the benefit. If you are not already a member of the Association, sign up now.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

At this time of the year many tenants and others are moving from one place to another in this and other counties. To those who are subscribers to THE NEWS we would earnestly request proper notice of any change in address, in order to keep our mailing list correct. Many fail to notify us of their change of address, and in this way cause a great deal of trouble to the postal officials and to THE NEWS.

Subscribers sending in changes of address will please bear in mind that they must give us both their old and new address. If only the new address is given we often have to look over a large list of names to find where the subscriber received his mail before his address was changed. You will greatly help us if you will always bear this in mind when sending in a change of address. Always write name and address plainly.

The free traders also believe in free speech—and practice it.
